EDITORIAL

This issue contains an obituary of Leopold Dintenfass by Geoffrey V. F. Seaman and a select list of Leo Dintenfass's publications, which differs from that published in CLINICAL HEMORHEOLOGY. The selection was made specifically for BIORHEOLOGY.

This issue also contains Part IV of the Proceedings of the VII. International Congress of Biorheology, held last year in Nancy. It involves the Symposium, entitled 'Biorheology Related to Artificial Organs' edited by Ditmar Lerche and Dieter Liepsch. Some further contributions to this Symposium may be published in a forthcoming issue of BIORHEOLOGY. The remaining Congress paper included in Part IV completes the Symposium entitled, 'Rheological Behavior of White Blood Cells. In Vitro and In Vivo Approaches', edited by Herbert J. Meiselman and Salvatore P. Sutura, and published in BIORHEOLOGY 6, 817-869, 1990.

In addition there are five papers, accepted by various Editors, in this issue.
