

Author Index Volume 3 (2012)

Anderson, P., International environmental law: Status, problems, and reform prospects	71–91
Borger, G., All things not being equal: Aviation in the EU ETS	265–281
Doelle, M., and E. Lukaweski, Carbon capture and storage in the CDM: Finding its place among climate mitigation options?	49–69
Howes, S., see Olbrei, E.	103–137
Kloeckner, J., The power of eco-labels: Communicating climate change using carbon footprint labels consistent with international trade regimes under the WTO	209–230
Kulovesi, K., A new chapter in the UN climate change negotiations? First steps under the Durban Platform for Enhanced Action	181–189
Lukaweski, E., see Doelle, M.	49–69
MacLennan, M., and L. Perch, Environmental justice in Latin America and the Caribbean: Legal empowerment of the poor in the context of climate change	283–309
Martin, T.A., Traditional commercial model or distributed generation? Finding the proper scale for wind energy	231–246
Montini, M., and E. Orlando, Balancing climate change mitigation and environmental protection interests in the EU Directive on carbon capture and storage	165–180
Motaal, D.A., Curbing CO ₂ emissions from aviation: Is the airline industry headed for defeat?	1–24
Olbrei, E., and S. Howes, A very real and practical contribution? Lessons from the Kalimantan Forests and Climate Partnership	103–137
Orlando, E., see Montini, M.	165–180
Perch, L., see MacLennan, M.	283–309
Scaccia, B., California's Renewable Energy Transmission Initiative as a model for state renewable resource development and transmission planning	25–47
Thorpe, A., Too little, too soon? An assessment of Australian carbon capture and storage legislation against the new standards set for the Clean Development Mechanism	139–163
Weishaar, S.E., and E. Woerdman, Auctioning EU ETS allowances: An assessment of market manipulation from the perspective of Law and Economics	247–263
Woerdman, E., see Weishaar, S.E.	247–263