

FOREWORD

It gives me great pleasure to welcome the publication of the International Symposium, entitled "Microcirculation, Interstitium, Lymph. Pathophysiology and Disease", as a Special Issue of CLINICAL HEMORHEOLOGY.

This Special Issue was edited by my friend and colleague, Siegfried Witte, and will be followed by other Special Issues and Supplements.

In my appraisal, many physicians, surgeons and biomedical scientists concerned with the fields covered by the Proceedings of this Symposium will greet their publication.

I am convinced that the Readers of this first Special Issue will welcome this volume as much as I do.
