EDITORIAL

This special issue represents Part I of the Proceedings of the Fifth European Conference on Clinical Hemorheology.

We are very glad to inform our Readers, that last February, the Institute for Scientific Information (ISI), Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, USA, accepted CLINICAL HEMORHEOLOGY for the LIFE SCIENCES Section of CURRENT CONTENTS. It should be noted that our Journal will continue to be listed in the CLINICAL MEDICINE Section of CURRENT CONTENTS. This dual listing in the two sections of CURRENT CONTENTS will begin without delay. Of course, CLINICAL HEMORHEOLOGY is included in the CITATION INDEX DATABASE of ISI.

Indeed, the above extended listings are good news for our Authors. They also will be welcomed by our Editors to solícite manuscripts, submitted to them for publication.
