

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Editor-in-Chief,

It is gratifying that you published several articles critical of CC Sapiens. My experience in life and science indicates that in such cases research cannot fail to make a positive contribution.

As I understand it, both D. Bronstein and H. Berliner are perturbed by the decided success of CC Sapiens. But the proof of the pudding is in the eating. We now have a sufficiency of resources and are working on a new version of the program. In half a year's time, it will be clear who was right in this discussion.

With kind regards
M. Botvinnik

Moscow, November 23, 1993

Photo by courtesy of Gennady Timoshchenko

SHOULD KNIGHT FALL?

Gennady Timoshchenko puzzled by fertility in Novosibirsk.