

JOURNAL OF CLINICAL SPEECH & LANGUAGE STUDIES

Volume 12/13, 2002/2003

CONTENTS

- Making 'sense': emotions and embodiment in language therapy
Kaye Cederman 1
- The impact of acquired neurological dysarthria on the speaker's self-concept
Margaret Walshe 9
- Speech and language therapy assistants: the views of speech and language therapists in Ireland
Anne Geraghty 34
- Creating a care pathway for young dysfluent children using evidence based practice (EBP)
Trina Corry 57
- Elaborating metaphor: an exploration of the use of metaphor with a student on clinical placement
Trudy Stewart 72
- Characteristics of performance change in dysarthria: clinical perspectives.
Anja Lowit, Nick Miller, Ninik Poedjianto 87
- Evidence-based speech and language therapy: do we use the evidence?
Hanneke Kalf 108
- Revealing ability amidst perceived disability in clinical interactions: a nice idea or a clinical imperative?
Irene P. Walsh 118
- Bilingualism, language disability, and linguistic human rights'
Jeffrey L. Kallen 147