

From the Editor

This issue of WORK contains a variety of topics related to work such as violence towards caregivers, an innovative approach for the treatment of CTDs, an outcome study in an industrial rehabilitation program, and multidimensional aspects of work capacity. The issue also contains our regular features of student papers and the columns: Speaking of Research and Rehabilitation

Ergonomics. I know you will enjoy all of these articles.

As always, I welcome hearing from you with suggestions of future themes for our journal.
