

From the Editor

I write this From the Editor while 30,000 feet above the earth on a flight from Boston to Tampa, Florida, USA to participate in an alumni event. I thoroughly enjoy such flights because they provide me with uninterrupted time to work or enjoy leisure pursuits such as reading a book or watching a movie. On this flight, I am watching First Man which explores the life of astronaut Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon in 1969. As the moon comes into view from my window, it supports my appreciation of the progress made in aviation over the last 50 years. I can only imagine what the next 50 years will bring.

This issue of WORK contains 10 articles on a variety of topics such as the effects of a multi-behavioral health promotion program at worksite on smoking patterns and quit behavior, psychological mechanism linking employee work engagement and turnover intention, views of supportive actions for older workers after completion of comprehensive vocational rehabilitation services. The issue also includes an important Sounding Board article on Lyme Disease authored by occupational therapist Rachel Thurston; and two articles for the monthly special section on Ergonomics in a Global World. These articles are Evaluation of Conventional Training in Clinical Breast Examination (CBE) and Ergonomic Practices in Africa Date Palm Agriculture in Algeria as an Example. These articles were oral presentations from the 2018 International Ergonomics Association (IEA) Congress in Florence, Italy.

We hope that you have been enjoying our webinar series, Learn at WORK. If you missed any of the webinars, you can find the recordings at the Learn at WORK YouTube channel: <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCOJalCXvSg9fPHaFFs48PuQ>
