

From the Editor

---

As I write this From the Editor, it is autumn in the United States and we are spending the weekend at our family home in New Hampshire. It is the time of year where one of nature's greatest shows is beginning. That is, when leaves change color to brilliant reds, oranges and yellows. As my favorite poet, Robert Frost wrote in his poem, October:

*“O hushed October morning mild,
Thy leaves have ripened to the fall;
Tomorrow's wind, if it be wild,
Should waste them all.
The crows above the forest call;
Tomorrow they may form and go.
O hushed October morning mild,
Begin the hours of this day slow.
Make the day seem to us less brief.
Hearts not averse to being beguiled,
Beguile us in the way you know.
Release one leaf at break of day;
At noon release another leaf;
One from our trees, one far away.
Retard the sun with gentle mist;
Enchant the land with amethyst.
Slow, slow!
For the grapes' sake, if they were all,
Whose leaves already are burnt with frost,
Whose clustered fruit must else be lost-
For the grapes' sake along the wall”*

This issue of WORK contains 22 articles and three others in our monthly section on Ergonomics in a Global World which were presentations from the 2018 International Ergonomics Association (IEA) Congress. The issue contains a vast variety of topics such as overcoming stigma; evaluation of the guidelines to select the anthropometrically recommendable height of school furniture; the experiences of women with traumatic brain injury after vocational rehabilitation; the service and knowledge gap between rehabilitation professionals and employers in the return-to-work process; the effect of sit-stand schedules on office work productivity; and a review of the application of ergonomics in instructional design.

I am sure you will find at least one article of interest to you.

I hope you are continuing to enjoy our webinar series, Learn at WORK. Here is the schedule for the upcoming 2019 Learn at WORK webinars:
